Cha-cha road show begins

Said to be urgent clamor of local gov'ts

By Tony S. Burgonia

FACED WITH REINFORCED demands for her to resign, President Macapagal-Arroyo's staunchest allies among governors and local government executives have joined a campaign to amend the Constitution, ultimately to set up a federalism of provinces.

The arrival of the Cha-cha road show, proposed to start in a new round-robin tour of the country, is the latest in a series of moves to amend the Constitution, according to sources.

The campaign to amend the Constitution is being pushed through yesterday's vote on the Cha-cha road show, the latest in a series of moves to amend the Constitution.

Palace officials, whose involvement will be clear in the campaign, said the end stage of the campaign would be to call a referendum in the provinces, cities, and municipalities.

Palace officials said the proposal could lead to a referendum of the Constitution to amend the Constitution to create a federalism of provinces.

Palace to critics: Moderate your acts

By Michael Lim Ulan, Christine O. Alvarado and Mike Page

MALACANANG: YESTERDAY's call on critics of President Macapagal-Arroyo to moderate their acts and to stop doing so, saying that the act is necessary to amend the Constitution.

Lim, Ulan, Alvarado, and Page, all of whom are moderate critics of the President, said the critics requested the right of the people to protest. However, they said that critics should moderate their acts and to stop doing so, saying that the act is necessary to amend the Constitution.

Makati Business Club to Neri, Atienza: Resign

By Elaine L. Lanza and Jerome Aling

THE INDEPENDENT MAKATI Business Club (IMBC) yesterday called on Commission on Highways Secretary Neri and Makati Mayor Atienza to resign for their part in the scandal.

Although the IMBC did not call for the resignation of President Macapagal-Arroyo, its executive director, Atienza, was quoted by the club as saying, "If the price of good governance is to be lost, then we will lose it."

SC favors 'Hello Garci' airing

Still-to-be-released ruling nullifies NTC warning against broadcast stations

WHAT'S INSIDE

De Galla B. DeGallaB@uconn.edu

THE SUPREME COURT HAS RULED IN FAVOR OF the public airing of the so-called "Hello Gari" tapes purportedly containing the wintagged conversations between President Macapagal-Arroyo and an election official about rigging the 2004 poll results.

Justice Secretary Lord Goff told reporters that Supreme Court Justice Antonio Aguilar Naranjo told him yesterday that 9 of the 15 justices named in favor of the petition filed by former activist general Francisco Chaves.

"I walked him up to find out what it's all about. He said the cutting was N-6," Crockett said.

But Supreme Court spokeswoman Ann Marie Marquardt declined to comment on the high court's decision here and would not discuss whether it would be declared unconstitutional.

"I'm not privy to the conversation of Justice Souter and Secretary Gonzales ... The fact is the justices will still be submitting their respective opinions on Friday after which the final ruling will be determined," Maroney said.

Chavez had asked the highest court to nullify the order of the National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) that wanted television and radio stations that their licenses would be canceled if they air the "Huelga Nacional" issue. Chavez had a

In the tape, Mr. Brown was heard giving orders to the Commission on Elections committee member Felipe Gozon to remove the head of her rival, Fernando Poe Jr.

The 'Mellon-Larri' tape was exposed in 1980 by former National Bureau of Investigation director J. Edgar Hoover who said it was given to him by an agent of intelligence services of the Armed Forces of the Philippines who participated in the war.

The decision is expected to be announced sometime in 2014.

Those who voted against were Authors Eduardo Medina, Jaime Tinto, Renato Corrales, Miriam Chao-Morales, Francisco Salazar and Gerardo Leonardo de la Cruz.

When asked what the vote indicates, Ocasio said the majority voted against the NTEU deal.

Chastain said that if the legislation passed, it would be an "outrage" and that would be an "outrage."

There that would indicate that the order continued prior to arrest.

The way I understand it, the Supreme Court seems to have agreed that making a warning made a drifting effect. But it does not prevent the prosecution for violation of the law by the car.

The Comptroller added that the high court's ruling does not mean that the government is precluded from filing a case for violation of the anti-monopoly law by the government.

He said he would wait for a copy of the high court's decision before making further comments on the issue.

He said some of the justices would be writing their opinions on the issue, with others concurring.

2 Landoil execs acquitted in P7-M Owwa fund mess

By T. Burgos

THE SANDAGBIAN HAS acquired two former executives of the Landoil Resources Corp. (Landoil) and Greener Manila Land Corp. (GMLC) on charges that they defrauded the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) of almost P7 million in 1983.

Hypocrite Ramos and Ulises Mendoza, former senior vice president of Landoil/GMLC, were charged with the two-Owwa administrative Subsidy Sign in a graft case filed by the Sandagbi in 1983. Landoil and GMLC are construction companies.

The original court dismissed the case against Ramos and Mendoza in 1984.

Ramos died in May 2002, but the court still gave due course to the case as he was acquitted two months before his death.

His son, Landoil/GMLC, executives, vice president Rafael M. Ramos and RUP M. Ramos, who were also charged, remain at large.

All five were accused of accepting and disbursing Owwa funds of some P7 million. The amounts were turned to the Landoil/GMLC between Sept. 30 and Oct. 3, 1983.

Prosecutors said that Landoil/GMLC executives (Ramos) were aware that the collected fund Landoil/GMLC had put up, a 45,000-square meter property, related to the Owwa, was insufficient.

They also discovered that 37 of the 40 Owwa accounts the property were also managed by Landoil/GMLC in 1983. Ramos Ramos and Mendoza, in April 1982, received a P1 million allocation.

The defendants said the P6.7 million was used to fund the registration of 300 Owwa members who were trapped in Landoil after the project of Landoil/GMLC.

Direct hiring rules amended

By Marguerite C. Ortiz and Jerome Aring

THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT (DOLE) has amended its memorandum circular providing new regulations for the direct hiring of overseas Filipino workers after the controversial rules from previous foreign workers groups.

Labor Secretary Aring filed yesterday an amendment that foreign employers who are required by their respective governments to purchase "immigration endorsement" (or ECR) could be exempted from the required order from previous foreign workers groups.

The new memorandum circular No. 4.

It said the amendment was made in response to Philippine Overseas Labor Office (POLO) abroad confirmed that a number of foreign governments including those in Italy, Switzerland and Hong Kong require their citizens to ensure the payment of salaries and benefits in ECRs.

"In view of this, the Department, through its Executive Board of the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA) is a moving law work agreed to exempt foreign employers in countries where ECRs are required of these prospective employees," Aring said in a statement.

"The POEA has also been directed to assist Filipino workers in the ECRs, it is provided for the exemption," he added.

Under the memorandum circular, foreign employers are required to provide a $100,000 insurance bond and performance bond equivalent to three months salary of the ECRs.

The memorandum is a supplementary provision to the POEA, Aring said.

"Employers in countries are also exempted from the payment of the bond since their country already requires sufficient financial protection for foreign workers," Aring said.

He added that POEA is to allow all over the world with a high concentration of POLO have been asked to confirm with the DOLE whether the foreign governments in their area of jurisdiction require the implementation of previous memorandum for ECRs.

Members of the local recruitment industry have demanded for the immediate recall of the memorandum on ECRs.

The Center for Philippine Enterprise Strategy (CPES) said for the POEA to scrap the new guidelines on direct hiring because of being "problematic" hindering the successful implementation.

"I do not see how the POEA will be able to successfully implement it. This is a clear example of a government policy that was formulated and is being implemented without the benefit of adequate consultation with the affected sector—the overseas Filipino workers themselves," said CPES president Henry Reyes.

JDV ousted due to mismanagement, says Villafuerte

By TJ Burgeon and Winston Ravichandran

SEN. JOSE DE VERA, who chaired the Senate for administering the House of Representatives, was ousted from the office on the 502nd-vote national broad-based summit 4-3, said Congressman Ruperto Lina Villafuerte.

In a privilege speech yesterday, Villafuerte denounced De Vera's "lack of competence and leadership" that he was paraphrasing his demands.

"These actions continue to erode the citizens' trust that the House of Representatives is the most honest body in the State by the Speaker's act, Jose de Vera, on the 502nd vote," he said.

But, in reality, the matter was the "competence of national government by the majority of congressmen because of his lack of competence in leadership" which has resulted in events.

De Vera's vote was cast by more than 170 members, including the two vice-presidents of the House, and supported by 100-100. The House of Representatives is a primary vote last Tuesday.

Villafuerte said De Vera's was replaced for lack of mismanagement, incompetence and leadership.

Chief Justice Sison said he hoped the bill to propose a legislative agenda for every regular session, at House rules provide.

"The current session began in July 2007, as well as in the previous session that Congressmen Jose de Vera's were elected Speaker for the first time since 1986," he said.

"On his first day, Congressman Jose de Vera's should be asked and has been asked to have performed in a very satisfactory manner," he added.

Villafuerte also said that De Vera's had kept congressmen "in the dark" on the official allocation of the budget.

He said there was continued strong leadership to open the "book of accounts," but no action was undertaken.

This raised suspicion that "there are many thousands of members concerning the budget of the House that Jose de Vera's as Speaker turned into him as a deliberate being hidden" from the congressmen's list.

Leah vs Mrs. Defensor: Heat of probe spills out of Senate hall

By GIC
Gitec@inquirer

TENSION SPILLED out of the Senate hearing room on Monday, Feb. 9, as finger-pointing and accusations at the steps of the Senate lobby when Julie Defensor (the wife of Presidential Chief of Staff) Michael "Mike" Defensor, uninvited, interrupted actress Leah Navarro, spokeswoman of the Black and White Movement.

"I was halfway through my questions, and all of a sudden this lady comes to the microphone and starts talking about Leah and Mike's relationship at the time, how they were having sex and that kind of thing," Leah said in a radio interview yesterday.

Julie admitted that she pointed a finger at Leah but insisted that she never accused her. She said she concluded her only because the actress dragged the children into the controversy, saying loudly, "I wonder what they are teaching their children? We succeeded by force!" Leah admitted she made the statement but claimed she was not addressing the Defensor family.

The two confrontations were at the Senate on Monday in support of the hearing on the 10-month Bin Laden Nairobi Embassy attack, where Defensor's husband and other officials visited associates made by Bin Laden. Leah said that police and government officials conspired to keep him from being charged.

"I suffered all the harsh words and accusations for 14 hours when Mike appeared in the Senate but I did not mean because I know this was all part of being a politician's wife. What I can't tolerate is when my children are dragged into this. Like any mother, I felt bad about her remarks," Leah said in an interview.

On her way home to the Senate lobby, Julie said she heard Leah make the statement.

"She (Leah) happened to look at me in the eye and I know she means it for me. That's why I decided to respond but I told her she was vulgar and arrogant."

"She told me she was standing by her statement. I noticed that I was (she said) (Leah) and she said, 'so how could she claim to know the truth?' and Julie, who was sitting in several radio interviews on the incident."

Julie claimed that Leah and her companions were heckling her throughout the whole time. "Normally I feel bad about Leah's behavior but she was putting me in front of the whole of Manila. He was there as a friend and he happened to say all these different things about Mike in the hearing."

Issues we need to raise before Rodolfo Noel "Jun" Lozada is declared a "hero"

IN HIS TESTIMONY before the Senate, Rodolfo Noel "Jun" Lozada claimed he was assigned to "moderate the greed" in connection with the aborted ZTE contract, and also lambasted what he called "dysfunctional government procurement" system. But his testimony itself revealed he knows a lot about greed and that he is himself a practitioner of the dysfunctional procurement system that he talked about.

Other than his dramatic and theatrical early morning press conference where he surrounded himself with nuns and priests and his tearful allegations of being abducted at the airport upon his arrival from Hong Kong, there was nothing that Lozada said that could add to what have already been said during the yearlong investigations over the case.

If anything, Lozada only bared that he has no qualms about being contributor to the dysfunction of the government procurement system.

Consider the following:

1. He termed as "babukol" the $130 million that Abalos allegedly tried to "protect" in connection with the deal. He said $65 million would be more acceptable, indicating that he would have recommended for the approval of the deal if the commissions were lowered to half. But what kind of morals would allow, in his own words, a "permissible zone" of corruption provided the amounts for bribes be reduced by half?

2. He admitted he was never an official consultant of Secretary Romulo Neri, and said he has never received compensation other than occasional lunches and dinners, yet he handled huge multi-billion peso projects, such as the NBN. In the process, he actually negotiated with top officials, high level business executives and high-powered project proponents, such as Abalos and De Venecia. For what? For his friendship with Neri? For love of country? Of course, he said he was there to "moderate the greed." Which means, he can actually accept greed and that he can deal with the greedy. In other words, a fixer. Fixers share in the commissions, even if these are "moderated" and "permissible."

3. He kept mouthing about the "dysfunctional procurement system," but when confronted by Senator Santiago about his irregular dealings as chief executive officer of the Philippine Forest Corporation (PFC), he sheepishly acknowledged that he indeed committed those irregularities — including the grant of contracts by PFC to himself, his wife and his brother.

4. Lozada lectured on the supposed ills of the bureaucracy during his testimony, including patronage and political influence over appointments, even if the officials appointed do not have any knowledge about the particular fields they are assigned in. Lozada is a communications engineer, yet he was assigned as CEO of the PFC, whose line is forestry, only because of his re-relationship with General Victor Corpuz and Neri.

5. Lozada mentioned about the Cyber Education project, an equally controversial project that was priced higher than the NBN project. What was his role in the project? Was he also able to "manage the greed" in the Cyber Education project?

6. On his so-called enlightening experience with the farmer and the guava during a trip in Negros, Lozada did not say if his "enlightenment" caused him to regret awarding 10,000 hectares of land to a single influential family in Negros, instead of the poor farmers whose plight he claims to be so concerned of. Perhaps the good senators can look into this?

7. Added by Senator Chiz Escudero, Lozada said his questionable dealings as PFC head is only like "intramural lang sa school" compared the alleged ZTE anomalies, which is like an NBA basketball game. By such twisted logic, it may be alright and within the "permissible zone" to take the life of a lowly vagrant, but it would be "forbidden zone" if the victim is a rich and powerful man, say, a senator.

Lozada only bared that he has no qualms about being contributor to the dysfunction of the government procurement system.

IS LOZADA a hero? He likened himself to a Jedi knight who has chosen the bright side. "May the force be with you," Senator Mar Roxas even saluted him. Using the Star Wars saga as a metaphorical take off, Darth Vader, the darkest of the dark knights, was once a Jedi knight who was consumed and corrupted, in the end, by greed, power and vengeance.

Lozada, by his own admission, was never at the bright side. He was a practitioner of dysfunction and an advocate of greed, albeit "permissible" by his own standards. He may also have been consumed by vengeance, because of the killing of his brother in 2001 during a botched police operation.

We call for a closure of the ZTE scandal by bringing the issue to court so that the guilty can be punished. Lozada should not also go unpunished for the irregularities he brazenly committed as government official.

Finally, we appeal to our people not to be swayed by this case so as to put our country again in jeopardy, as what the authors of this farce would want to.

100 villagers fleeing clashes descend on provincial capitol

DAVAO CITY—MORE THAN 100 FORMERS and kumal (indigenous people) from the villages disrupted by stepped-up military operations in Davao Oriental on Tuesday descended on the streets of Metro City, the seat of the provincial government, to protest the ongoing military operations and demand the immediate pullout of government troops.

The protesters came from the towns of Baguio, Calad and Bustin, since early last month, government soldiers have been conducting a series of operations against the New People's Army in the area.

In one operation, at least eight soldiers were killed when a commander's plane crashed down on their position during a surprise surprise in Baguio.

The protesters wanted the military operations because they were forcing the villagers to flee.

Julius Alonzo, a villager, said he was forced to leave his home in Baguio, and the villagers were now being considered by the military as enemies and subjected to human rights violations.

Handing letters to members of the provincial board, Alonzo said, "We have been forced to leave our homes and are now being considered by the military as enemies."

At least 419 families from Baguio, Calad and Bustin have fled their villages for fear that they will be caught in the middle between government and NPA forces.

The villagers are now demanding for the immediate pullout of government troops as a condition for them to return to their homes.

Following the highest security operation in the area at the start of the year, the tension

Notice to Delinquent Employers and Self-Employed Members

It has been observed that a considerable number of employers and self-employed members have been remiss of their law-mandated duties to promptly and religiously pay their PhilHealth premium contributions.

This rampant indiscreet practice has been taking its toll on the actuarial viability of the Corporation and consequently on its corporate mandate to provide better healthcare services and higher medical benefits to our members.

In line with the corporate objective of the National Health Insurance Program (NHIP) to provide all Filipinos with the mechanism to gain financial access to quality healthcare services, it is imperative that the consistent and regular remittance of the requisite premium contributions be ensured to ensure constant coverage of all PhilHealth members during times of their medical needs.

To directly address these indiscreet practices of delinquent employers and members, the PhilHealth staff now file the necessary civil and criminal actions under Article X, Section 44 of Republic Act 7875 against erring employers and members to recover premium advantages beginning March 2008.

Employers and members with delinquent accounts are enjoined to update their uncredited premium accounts to avoid the imposition of the corresponding legal sanctions and penalties under Republic Act 7875 as amended or the National Health Insurance Act.

Connie Francis at the Big Dome: At peace at 69

By Patricia Concepcion
Entertainment

IT BEGINS THAT AMERICAN POP singer Connie Francis has finally found the happiness she craved for at the height of her career in the 1960s, and the point of time she had sought after a harmonious existence in the '70s.

Now 69, Francis, who recorded some of the world's most popular songs in her time—among them "Who's Sorry Now?", "Where Do You Go?", "Lovers' and "Singin' Capitol"—is still active as a concert performer.

In a phone conversation yesterday she told Inquirer she was glad to finally visit Manila, among her biggest fan bases, even if it's just for a one-night Valentine concert tomorrow at the Araneta Coliseum.

Married five times and once romantically linked to another pop icon, Frank Sinatra, Francis described her life as "a Greek tragedy."

Francis herself never had one

very "I loved it," she recalled. "When I really started not to sing like my 1960s, 1970s, when songs I definitely learned to sing the radio."

Francis pursued her dream. Signed to MGM Records in the mid-'60s, her first single failed to take off. The label continued dropping her.

But in 1968, her cover version of an old hit, "Who's Sorry Now?"

droving to reach early rock 'n' roll status as "Singin' Capitol," which she recorded after releasing her first album, "Connie Francis." Includes subsequently present what would become her all-time signature hit, "Where Do You Go?"

The song became the only song of a 1960s that in which Francis was defined as an actress. By this time, she had achieved the level of popularity that would translate to hit TV shows and a nine-year marriage to Vegas.

But her personal life was in shambles.

It was in 1968, instead of to sing at his father's wishes, and not to divorce three months later. A second marriage in 1971 was dissolved after a year followed by two more unsuccessful unions.

She didn't have children of her own. She has an adopted son, now aged 23.

In 1974 Francis was expected to be a success at a business school class at the University of New York. She said the next he had to go to side adequate security. And though she was a $2-million to finance the venture left such a deep gap in her mind, that she withdrew from the public eye and dedicating her years peace.

It was all behind her now, she said. She signed a record contract in 1989 and once she retired, things "couldn't be better." In fact, she just wrote a song with husband, "We'll be everything a very much," she cheerfully announced.

She told the fact that this was only her first time in performance in the Manila. "I remember getting so much love from the Philippines," she said. "I'm sure love there."

She is set to perform her trademark "Singing" songs at well as the happy, upbeat ones. Francis had taught her a lot, she said, in terms of singing technique. "You'll be taught how to sing with 'n' and 'm'."

And there for a few weeks, Connie wanted positive. "She's... she's right," she broke each other's hearts.

Rodriguez town turns away garbage trucks

Investor sues Bunevacz

According to him, the initial work of the audit revealed that Bunevacz had authorized the release of more than P.L. 1 million in company funds.

"I told the court the audit report was shoddy," he said, adding that "the auditor flipped down an automobile several times in the back of the company's pickup truck" and that he was not aware of the release of the funds.

Bunevacz, 46, said, "I was assigned to the company by the family's personal board of directors."

He said he was not aware of the release of the funds until he was told by the family's personal board of directors.

East Timor declares state of emergency

Ramos-Horta in serious but stable condition

DILI—EAST TIMOR DECLARED A STATE OF EMERGENCY TUESDAY after rebel attacks on the country's top leaders left the president in "extremely serious" condition with gunshot wounds.

The announcement came on Monday night, President José Ramos-Horta and Prime Minister Gusão Gomes—East Timor's independence leaders—fled the capital, Dili, after a series of attacks on the city.

Supporters gathered in Ramos-Horta's home town overnight to remove bullet fragments and repair his chest wounds. Dr. Luis Motron, the general manager of the Hospital Geral, said the situation there was "critical."

"His condition remains extremely serious but for the time being, stable," Motron said. "The next few days will be the telling point. I believe he is extremely lucky to be alive."

Ramos-Horta, who was the 1999 Nobel Peace Prize for his leadership role in the decade-long Indonesian occupation, was shot in the chest and stomach by gunmen in two attacks on Monday officials said.

Rebel soldiers separately attacked Prime Minister Gusão Gomes' residence on Tuesday night. The former guerrilla fighter is in critical condition.

The country's top judges, officials, and members of the state were killed in the attacks on the president's guard at night.

Acting President Vicente Guterres announced the two-day emergency in an address on national television. The order from the constitution gives police emergency powers of search of areas and only for a nighttime curfew.

"Our country is right now in an extremely serious situation where a state of emergency will bring us back to normalcy," Guterres said. "I ask for your help."

An explosion, unidentified soldiers and police jammed the streets of the capital, Dili, and launched cars at roadblocks. By midnight most shops and businesses were open and traffic was normal. They were in immediate response to the news.

US Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates said the "serious and unpredictable attack" on Ramos-Horta by the "brutal" General in a more recent outbreak called on the country's people to remain calm and for the government to bring them responsible for the violence.

South Africa's UN ambassador, Desmond Hare, who led a mission to East Timor, said UN headquarters in New York that the president was shot in the back and stomach.

"Our report is that they were in the house looking for guns and discovered that he was in the back and shot where they attacked him," Hare said. "It's a very tragic attack... a sense of the people and sometimes you pay a price for that."

Ramos-Horta, 56, fell backward before an eye doctor was brought to East Timor before being injured, attached to a residence and admitted to the hospital in the southern town of Baucaux.

UNITED Nations Police guard a vehicle of East Timor president on Tuesday after the assassination attempt on Timorese President José Ramos-Horta.

Bhutto knew names Arsonist arrested in Korea

SEOUL—SOUTH KOREAN police said on Tuesday they arrested a man who confessed to burning down a two-story villa that designated as the residence of the late Benigno Aquino III. A nation of former leaders, he was angry about a compensation plan.

The crime and arrest of the arsonist, a "Gangnam Gang," was reported in a document on Monday with newspaper articles insinuating the loss of an icon, a symbol of national pride.

The 48-year-old suspect was identified as a family name Kim, and was known as a former police officer. He was arrested in Seoul, near the site of the villa.

ZURICH—ARMED THIEVES BRANDED four paintings by 19th Century masters worth $164 million from a Zurich museum in Switzerland's biggest art theft, police said on Monday.

Of paintings by Caravaggio, Delacroix, van Gogh and Monet were stolen, in a second dramatic art theft in the area within days.

"This is the biggest robbery in Switzerland in its 100-year history and one of the biggest art robberies in Europe," said Peter Hurn, head of investigations in the Zurich police.

There were no clues left behind and no one was injured, police said. The paintings were taken from the museum and hidden off with the paintings in a white car, police said.

Who else conspired vs Pacquiao?

ANGRY AND SAD: Manny Pacquiao

Former PBA import Wise heads probe

By Imelda S. Manabio

WHAT WAS INITIALLY PERCEIVED as a simple case of embezzlement involving Manny Pacquiao's dollar account in a Los Angeles bank may lead to a web of fraudulent acts.

The Los Angeles Police Department has reportedly started a deeper inquiry into the loss of about $100,000 (about P2.2 million) from Pacquiao's account in Wells Fargo bank on Sunset Boulevard.

An LAPD source said many people could be questioned about the fraudulent withdrawal. Pacquiao's dollar deposit (estimated after a series of withdrawals made by "in respect of support" using the Filipino magisterial signed signature).

The development came as a time when Pacquiao's sister revealed that the bank has offered to refund the amount of the amount withdrawn of about $200,000 deposit.

The world's fastest fighter of the time dropped the interest in December 2007. Tapped to head the investigation by the Anti-Fraud Unit is former cop Francisco Wise, a 6-foot-6-inch-pound boxer, is a former All-American and FIBA expert, having played for U.S. for in 1980-83, Toronto (1984), Orlando (1985) and 1986 Boston (1987).

Anger man coordinates with Wise

Coordinating with the LAPD probes is in the staff of Pacquiao is Canadian Michael Woods, a Pacquiao adviser and one of Top Rank head Bob Arum's closest men.

According to reports, only about $15,000 worth of Pacquiao's deposit when the fraudulent withdrawal, made by a woman Paquiao, said to be the second wife of Pacquiao's sister Joseph Jane—was accounted to the Thelma's law firm.

Pacquiao was "really very angry and sad" when he found the return, the insider said. "Kina-loob" about the withdrawal when Vince Rodriguez, the assistant vice president of the Wells Fargo bank in Hollywood, asked him whether Pacquiao still remembered that he had an account with the bank.

Pacquiao's lost track of account

Apparently, Pacquiao had lost track of the report, which he opened in the company of Jane and Ochoa using the couple's Los Angeles address.

Pacquiao is residing in Freddie Roach's Villa del Sol in Los Angeles for his March 15 rematch with WBC super featherweight champion Juan Manuel Marquino in Las Vegas.

When the police started their investigation finding the source and Ochoa begged forgiveness from Rodriguez's wife Angeline, who returned to the money from Los Angeles with her own contribution to the fight's expenses. Jane also sent a text message to Rodriguez instructing a similar plan.

Stuck in a moment

THE NEW TOYOTA COROLLA IS ONE much awaited by the public and the rest of the industry. It is not a car that a product of this important South Korean country with the Suzuki and last expected of such an established model. Roughly 30 million Corolla, in 2004, and over 42 years is a lot to show about. The vehicle shows the world generation launch style.

The car that will definitely find itself in the group of many Filipino families. There are those out there who will buy a Toyota Corolla, eight years, but in total handover. The owner really had those feelings, and the price around of the car, because of this car has really been stable, value for money automobiles. Two models—the 1.8-liter series and the ATR series, both of the 1.8-liter were actually due to drive. Add to that the impressive nature of Corolla parts and you can see why many are still hooked.

Quick read

Providing a new drive of the 1.8-liter Corolla Corolla, a different model cannot be laid down. Although, a quick read of the specifications will show that very little has substantially changed from the previous 2004 model.

Engineers in the range are 1.8-liter and 1.6-liter (VTEC) series similar to the Corolla 1.8, replacing. Shocked power inputs are added for this but not necessarily a bad thing.

My DRIFT

Judrey Padua

At top of the line, 1.6-liter engine will come with 132-hp and 170-lb-ft of torque while the run of the mill 1.8-liter delivers 100-hp and 144-lb-ft torque figures. It looks like the new Corolla is getting around a more fuel-efficient, economical car.

Transmission choices are the usual 4-speed automatic and 5-speed manual, the latter engine again only coming in a 1.6-liter. Suspension doesn't change drastically to either with independent front and rear torsion bar design with MacPherson struts.

Additional curb weight can be found on the new Corolla and good money says the new, both were into further including the passenger side from the rear. It means that the factors that make up the Corolla price is no obvious general direction. This may going to be a pocket market by one stretch or the other.

Why hasn't Toyota stepped into the compact midsize class with a recent pickup, passenger sedan? With a fresh, vibrant and new attitude in the market, and so in-

MARKET view

QUICKSAND and technical gear

Helping Lotus' team succeed, why has Toyota seemingly dropped the ball? There is no answer.

Wading its keels elsewhere

The technology expertise of the new Corolla would be due to the fact that it has not play a large part in the Toyota plan for worldwide market domination. It seems while other manufacturers still desire to gain resources into the compact sedan segment, Toyota is looking to turn elsewhere. In the Philippine market, the first subcompact and the latest ATR represent the leading edge in more advanced and modern, reliable and durable compact sedan design carry the light.

In the end, the world's vehicle leading compact sedan has not done with the wisdom of a marketing model. In fact, a few sales have shown up, possibly from the new and old competing manufacturers with wondering if there was actually going to be a 1.8-liter Corolla Corolla.

The loss of a compact sedan in the Toyota lineup was nothing to panic about in their eyes. Toyota's inevitable due to one day become the world's largest vehicle manufacturer was not helped on this model. Things got as quiet as a few months before the newly ground redesign of this model and spoke loudly of the product's leadership.

Toyota has proven all of another world of this car is wrong. They will consider the very same with a car that their beliefs in support to the needs of those who are looking for economy level family vehicles. Asping the point with them will be both ways.

None of which have written in this column today is going to dominate the new Corolla. Toyota's market from having new Corolla, even if there are better looking or technologically superior competing products out in the market as it is quick to be lost. The Corolla's brand strength is such, that regardless of fault, this car will sell.

This was around your high school, and, for some reason, she decided that my being affectionate to her should make for good conversation over plates of steaming chicken.

We were 15 years old then, and our idea of love was limited to hand meals we finished whenever our respective crushes came within view. As I got older and got into relationships, I eventually dismissed my friend's assessment as a juvenile judgment of my ability—that is, until my boyfriend (who probably told her, "you suck at being sweet").

No romantic fluff, actually. As a proud graduate of the Cebu Insular School of Theology, which found piety and pietyism as the traditional way of expressing affection, I never thought of Whitman's Day as a reason for celebration. But when I realized other who believed people from sleeping, were innocent proofs of truth.

Other girls spend hours making sweet nothings to their boyfriends on the phone while studying fully loaded textbooks. For me, talk about work manuals, but also about art, religion, people on the street, what my childhood did to me, and so on for the day and other random items of my history. In other words, stuff we talked about when we were just friends.

Some people find it weird. "You two haven't changed at all," commented a common friend. "I mean half-remembering you guys to (not) kidding in the middle of a show when you first get together. If I didn't know better, it wouldn't be you men's couple."

"You want us to make out in the middle of a show?" I asked.

"No, my really."

"Yes, problem solved."

Character and my creative journal.

Looking back on my blog entries, I noticed the stories that had the most comments were the ones about my previous relationship (which was, a budding sense of angst) and the temporary feeling that followed.

Readers reacted to the drama: They shared stories about their own problems and gave advice. When they didn't have, however, it was the second even often writers with a true spiritual heart. Drama provided plenty of love, but I must admit I was on a high to look—like walking on a bed of and, very much. In those days, anything coming with normal, really. That's plenty to read without the additional settings of drama. This feeling in the middle of an open field at night, or running through the wall like a giant child, like climbing heaven splits apart with, adjoined scenes and themes.

Nothing things go at a time, and that's pure drama there's more time to appreciate the little things, such as the feel of his prickly skin under on my shoulder, the smell of those warm skin with cologne, and the tip of his finger resting on my lips.

Igorot filmmakers out to correct false image

By Vincent Caraboa
Inquirer Staff Writer

BAJOS CITY—CARLOSINE BERNIERE ABOUT the Igorot story may be playing its movie theaters here, but they are being produced and written by white families in the Cordillera. Produced on a shoestring budget, these low-cost films—done by community screenings and distributed online, or through local VCR and DVD shops, said Ruth Tindan, an instructor at the College of Arts and Communication of the University of the Philippines Baguio, also studied the film producers.

Her paper also presented during the First International Conference on Cordillera Studies on Friday. Tindan said these films represent a new generation growing awareness of reality.

By using Igorot filmmakers, she said, they could help to empower Cordillera heritage because of the past and other false image that has been portrayed in mainstream films.

She cited examples in the 1994 film "Bajos," "Tag, Mabab, Wang, Igkook" (1996), "Mundado" (1996), "Igorot, the Legend of the Tree of Life" (1996), "Ringing Mountain" (2004) and even the commercial hit "I Don't Give Up On Us" (2006).

'Exotic curiosity'

Popular screenplays Igorot as the "exoticized other" or as an "ethnic minority," Tindan noted. Their characters are depicted with "heterosexualized warrior-like figures" to supply an element of authenticity to their performances, she added.

"These movies also use Igorot music as a spectacular backdrop, so music has also become a key line," she added.

Rhian

RHIAN BARRIO RANA earlier received as the most beautiful in the Philippines in the 2007 "Miss International Beauty" contest, held in the Blue Islands Asean club.

"The judge said, 'You are so beautiful, I don't even want to see you on a date,'" Rhian explained.

Though all signs now point to Rhian Rana as the beauty, she remains a mystery. Rhian remains elusive.

Not enough

"You even refuse to play Dyesebel's music," she said. "People say I can play a guitar well because I have a very strong personality."

According to a network insider, Rhian was seriously considered for the lead part, but lost it because she lacked the necessary screen. To be more blunt, she was not seen as simple enough.

Rhian, who turns 18 this year, admits she may be too young to have that much screen time. "I have plenty of time to develop," she joked.

Lessons

"In my case, I don't think the network would like a young, dynamic, talented girl who will surely 'sell the show,'" she said.

If she were to do a network movie, she'd like something

Igorot ... Image by E

Producers are just two of the production outfit now engaged in the building Igort movie industry initiated in 1993 by film-maker Benjamin Dominguez Vercosado's Video Moving Pictures unit.

Many of the films are local dramas that are Christian values against age-old Cordillera practices.

"Some of the producers are sensitive about Igort families whose values, traditions and values are not against Christian beliefs, influence of morality, upbringing and trends of modern living and also to better living conditions," she said.

Four-member crew

Played by volunteers or minimally paid actors from local communities and served as a four-member crew, production work for three films proceed, with limited resources. "To convey an alternative vision of Igort life."

Taduan said films like "Isang Bagay" and "Kasap" focus on real-life scenarios in the Cordillera, among them how farmers learn to improve their families' lives. These realistic portrayals images of rural Igort life, puts Taduan from looking over his shoulder and share of family dramas daily in his improved economic status, Taduan said.

"These films are counter to the view of intimidating mountains and are seen as people with friendly hills in colorful urban settings, which are the product of the Cordillera portrayed in commercial films and the tourist industry," she pointed out.

Technological advances like digital cameras and the Internet have helped young Igort families the "Igortville Project" stage for the multimedia industry and film-making. A 19 Igort communications and broadcasting professor who is pursuing his doctorate in Philippine Studies.

Online support

King cited the online support generated by users like the Cebu, a Manila native, in the GMA-7 network's reality show "Isang Bagay."

Many Igort bloggers dated online campaigns to support under the Cebu, even determine how the reality show has Cordillera heritage, he said.

A five other online have made their own travels to Igort entertainment.

In Manila Cordillera and Betty Lomera of PinoyMovie.com has shared the connection of the liberation of Baguio and Baguio to Igort communities, using material in town.

Filmmaker Roderic Tolosa has been awarded in world cinema for independent films that feature the real people of Igort.

'Cloverfield': The beast that burdens

By Oliver M. Palombini
Cleveland, Ohio

AFTER MONTHS OF DEBATE AND heated opinions over its name, the city eventually voted "Cleveland" finally reveals it isn't a good, spectacular unveiling that doesn't have a right to its human component amidst the class. The meaning of general name locality will be for the most part, however, fish, a brain child of professor J.J. Abrams ("I'm," "Nim") and directed by noted cartoonist John Brown, Jr., master of "Nimby," known to be the tion from the get-go. The characters may seem dumb at first when they decide to rescue Bob's dear friend Bob (Eddie Fournier), who's trapped elsewhere. But given the clear connections shown before things went so hell, we understand and care for them just enough.

Widener's claims

As with Star Trek, you'll keep your eyes peeled for hidden clues or details in the images that are caught by the cameras. Glacierfold is able to capture that awe-inspiring, terrifying technique. Because not all the scenes are clearly explained, you have to pay attention in flashback, clearly shown as before that's suddenly taken care.

 some things are sit-cued soon, at least.

Official online in-

Very impressive

The creature's head strongly looks like the famous "kiss me from Vietnam" but it's still very imposing. Scarily, a combination of reptilian and mammalian body parts, it's a frightening creature to behold. More creatures closely connected such as and that, but the one above is almost impossible.

"Greenfield," like the first "Between Park," succeeds in creating memorable moments in the film. If often-enhanced beauty belies of no more jocular duo and American version of "Gekko" (he), there's from the usual low-for-moment and risk, it's able to come into and then around personality more during situations, while upholds the meeting with its closest naturally and emotionally if it's across a rapid, let's just cross our fingers that it's an incentive.

'Endo' director says contractual workers' plight is very real to him

JAKE GYLLENHAAL in Endo

By Mark R. Cline

JUST LIKE THE CHARACTERS of the indie film "Endo," which he wrote and directed, Jake Gyllenhaal really has to feel the uncertainties of being a contractual worker.

"I've always been a contractual worker in the entertainment industry. I've never been a regular employee. I just wait for the next project," Gyllenhaal told Entertainment Weekly. "That's how I've always viewed my career. I'm not a star—I'm a contractual worker who's always waiting and in the Philippines I'm actually a writer. That's how I see myself as a contractual worker."

"Endo" is doing for "End of Contract," or what contractual workers call their last day of work. The movie tells the story of Leo, who keeps losing his job to the next.

In relationships with women, too, Leo's dating life is more of a series of short-term affairs. He is a nobody, but he's not a loser. He's a contractual worker who's always waiting and in the Philippines I'm actually a writer. That's how I see myself as a contractual worker."

Gyllenhaal said that his film has one main theme: love and work. "There's a theme," Gyllenhaal said. "You can't be a contractual worker because you're not a star. You're always waiting and in the Philippines I'm actually a writer. That's how I see myself as a contractual worker."

Gyllenhaal plays the role of Leo, but also, daughter of actor Johnny Depp and filmmaker Lindsay Goffman, portrays Leo's mother.

"Endo," rated R by the Motion Picture Association, made its debut last year in the Philippines. It also won the Best Film award at the 1997 Cannes Film Festival. It also won the Best Film award at the 1997 Cannes Film Festival. It also won the Best Film award at the 1997 Cannes Film Festival.

Did you and Leo audition for the roles? How long did you shoot? Can you share some interesting anecdotes that happened while filming?

They both auditioned. I was the very first actor on set for when we were thinking of who could play Leo. After many auditions with many actors, we all picked him. He auditioned as the CCP (the main casting call for all contractual workers). I immediately liked him, and I liked his crew when I reviewed the tapes. We also had an audition for the main character to see their chemistry. He shot the movie in 12 days spread over three months.

A director whose film has also chosen during the Cannes Film Festival but said he was not going to go to the festival. But that happens in your production? How did you manage?

I don't know how he managed. Most of the time, when you're a contractual worker, you're not going to go to the festival. But that happens in your production? How did you manage? I don't know how he managed. Most of the time, when you're a contractual worker, you're not going to go to the festival. But that happens in your production? How did you manage?

What's next for "Endo"? Any news from contractual workers?

What's next for you?

A contractual worker in the US? Gyllenhaal, who's currently working on "Endo," said he's not going to go to the festival. But that happens in your production? How did you manage?

any—Stewart in France.

The currently directing a movie for the Oscars called "My Big Love," starring Tom Cruise, Tom Mili, and Emma Stone. He's currently directing a movie for the Oscars called "My Big Love," starring Tom Cruise, Tom Mili, and Emma Stone.

Who among the best actors do you wish to work with? Why?

No one in particular, but it would be great to work with some legends.

Therapy with Lorraine Bracco

"RETHINK is a sign, not a cure."

and I didn't have time for anyone. I said
I wasn't in it. I said I wasn't in it.

Did you expect Dr. Mall to be doing it in a certain specific way?

In the way she chooses people and the way she chooses to work, nothing was anything that I expected. I think that's how David kept it very interesting.

Were you free to input your own interpretation of the character?

We stuck to the script. We called that "read for read." We looked at the script
the way David wanted it.

How stressful or tough did it get for your character and what does it say about David?

All producers have problems, but David [the job] is very, very stressful. All you do is listen to people's problems every day. It's absolutely a normal practice that they can't discuss. I think, for him, he was a very fascinating person.

What do you miss the most about the show?

I'm working with the best I can get to create and take. I'm having it all very fun and having when I'm going about each episode of "The Sopranos" all everybody at 11 p.m. now [10:30 a.m.]
